

Welcome to AP Psychology!!!

I am really looking forward to this upcoming year. AP Psychology is a difficult class, but you have made the choice that you are a student who can handle the challenge. Congratulations on your decision!

Your first assignment for the summer is to join the Google Classroom for AP Psych. Once I get a class list, I will be sending out invites, but in case there is an issue with my typing ability, here is the class code: 64urmr5. Please join so you can get any updates for summer work. There is a course expectation sheet assignment that needs to be signed and returned before August 1st. I will be posting a pre-start of the year assignment at the beginning of August. Please be sure to follow the directions and have the work ready for the first time we meet.

This year we will be using the same psychology book that we have for the past psychology courses: Psychology, for the AP Course, Third Edition by David G. Myers and C. Nathan DeWall. We will be moving at a much faster pace than we have in the past psychology courses, and there will be additional work....but it should be manageable and still be fun! Be ready to delve into how our mental processes and behaviors shape us and how we interact with each other!!

Enjoy your summer and be prepared to jump into psychology and all it entails when we start school!!

Rest up and enjoy some time off!!
